

<stabetalk>

« CFC Media Lab Alumnus Receives I.D. 2010 Annual Design Review Award

OUT MY WINDOW WINS IDFA DOC LAB AWARD! »

CFC MEDIA LAB AT HTMLLES 2010

November 29, 2010 | Kimberly Dean | Posted in CFC Media Lab > News & Events

Jacqueline Nuwame, Sr. Training Programs Manager at the CFC Media Lab, had the honour of speaking at last week's HTMLles Festival of Media Art and Networked Practices 2010 in Montreal.

Founded in 1997 and produced by Studio XX, the HTMLles Festival of Media Art and Networked Practices explores various facets of digital technology and the web as a medium for the creation and exhibition of women's digital artworks. The festival occupies the singular position of being one of the only Quebecois and Canadian events entirely dedicated to the promotion and dissemination of independent media art, its particularity also being emphasized by its feminist approach, concerns and engagements.

Also featured at the festival was First Person Digital, produced in partnership with the NFB, which featured some amazing female-only work.

Take a peek at these other great projects:

www.itschinesetome.net
www.otandayanaan.net
www.perfectplum.com

A big shout-out to Studio XX for organizing this great event!

ShareThis | Tagged: CFC Media Lab, conference, digital, festival, htmlles, nfb, panel

Post a Comment

Your email is never shared. Required fields are marked *